

Siena College Symposium on Living Philosophers

The 2011-2012 Symposium on Living Philosophers will focus on the work of Kwame Anthony Appiah, Laurance S. Rockefeller University Professor of Philosophy at Princeton University.

Professor Appiah has made significant contributions to our understanding of the nature of language, racial identity, political and moral relationships and philosophical methodology. Siena students will critically examine these contributions, as well as develop and defend their own positions on these topics. The Symposium will culminate in a spring panel discussion where students will present their research projects and discuss them with Professor Appiah.

2011-2012 PUBLIC LECTURE SERIES

Thursday, September 15, 2011

Kwame Anthony Appiah, Princeton University

Friday, October 28, 2011

Linda Martín Alcoff, CUNY

Friday, February 17, 2012

Ronald Mallon, Washington University in St. Louis

Thursday, March 29, 2012

Kwame Anthony Appiah, Princeton University

Friday, March 30, 2012

Kwame Anthony Appiah, Princeton University

FOR MORE INFORMATION

contact Joshua Alexander, jalexander@siena.edu or Jennifer McErlean, mcerlean@siena.edu.

